

ARGENTINA NEW PRESIDENT HAS NATIONAL PUZZLED

Is First Time Radical Party Has Been Victor.
Elected Without Platform or Announced Policies.
ENEMIES FEAR HIS REIGN
Colleagues Recognize Him as Country's Greatest Man.
Fair Elections Is His Only Promise to the People.

Buenos Aires, Aug. 24.—When Hipolito Irigoyen takes the oath of office Oct. 12 as president of Argentina, his country will start on one of the biggest experiments ever undertaken by a republic. Dr. Irigoyen will head the first radical administration in Argentina.

What the doctor's idea of "radicalism" is, nobody knows. He has made no speeches. He has never defined his position. What he intends to do, as president, not one of his countrymen can guess. Nobody knows whether he is Pan-American.

The radical party was organized in Argentina to fight for fair elections. It has never had any other platform. "We have ideals," leading members of the party say, "but no program."

There are even reports that Dr. Irigoyen will issue a manifesto soon dissolving the party itself, now that an honest ballot, as he is said to believe, has been guaranteed. This, however, is mere surmise.

Trust Him Personally.
The doctor was elected president because a majority of the voters trusted him, personally, implicitly and blindly. Those who believe in him consider him Argentina's greatest man. His opponents regard him as extremely dangerous, and look forward to his administration with the gravest misgivings.

Dr. Irigoyen is about 60, a tall, powerfully-built, imposing man, and very dark. His blood is Spanish Basque, with a slight Indian strain, some say.

He is smoothly shaven, except for a very thin black mustache. Popular rumor is that his thinness is due to the doctor's custom of extracting the white hairs, which are reported to have appeared in considerable numbers in recent years as he has been scattering representation after their elimination.

The new president began life poor. He is self-educated but he works so well that, today, he is a highly-cultivated man.

Most prominent South Americans possess some economic degree entitling them to the prefix of "doctor" before their names. Irigoyen is spoken of as "doctor" because he is prominent in the field of economics. He lacks the degree.

Rich Thru Land Deals.
He is now very rich. His wealth was accumulated in successful land transactions. By occupation he is a ranchman on a huge scale. Part of his time he spends on his "estancia" in the country; the rest at his very modest residence in Buenos Aires.

For a long time, for pure recreation he held the professorship of "civic instruction" at the Buenos Aires Escuela Normal de Mujeres, or Normal School for Women. His salary for this work he turned over regularly to the Sociedad de Beneficencia, or "United Charities" of Buenos Aires. Twelve years ago a president who was his personal enemy caused his removal from this post in the normal school and he has never held it since.

For twenty years he has been the Radical party's leader. His authority has been absolute. His opponents within the party's ranks have been Several thousand students at the state agricultural college, Manhattan, may find their room rent in the school town starting a week in advance of school and have nothing to do but stand in front of the postoffice and watch the goat car start to Junction City. It is all because of a mix-up in the advertising literature for the state school. Even the faculty is muddled as to the time when it is expected to begin work.

Recently the state board of administration sent out hundreds of circulars announcing the opening of the state schools. The schools are expected to open during the week of September 11. Only at Manhattan it is rather uncertain. Students are not expected until September 12, and some of the faculty members have assumed the theory that a faculty is not needed until there is someone to teach. So the board of administration is trying to straighten the matter out.

In the office of the state board today, Lee Harrison, secretary, explained that the matter was very clear. Very, very clear. At the same time he explained that the school literature was causing some concern and a good many students were muddled in their own minds as to the time when they should open their books and begin work.

The Board Understood It.
It seems that the state board advertised the opening of the State Agricultural college the week of September 11. School was to start September 12. Students, who were not expected until the following week, probably the matter was quite clear to the board and some of the school officers. But to several thousand students it was different. They have been writing letters, post cards and sending telegrams to straighten the matter out. Still, it is quite apparent that Manhattan boarding house keepers should lay in a fair supply of canned vegetables and packing house beef and ham for the ambitious agriculturists who come September 11 or 12.

The opening of the agricultural college was advertised for September 12, just as the other state schools," explained Lee Harrison today. "Students, who will not begin their work until September 13. The work the first week will merely concern faculty members and there will be no regular classes."

But the sturdy, energetic and ambitious young men and women from the Kansas farms do not seem to have understood the matter. And the Manhattan drug store and postoffice may be popular loafing places until school really opens. Some of the faculty members are also in doubt about the matter, but they will merely concern faculty members and there will be no regular classes."

with puzzling, harsh realities. But always there are friends who are "K" and watch over her—there is "K."

It is a matter for congratulation that Mrs. Rinehart has emphasized in this novel the strongest element of her success as a story-teller—her keen and sympathetic expression of the joys and troubles of young love. "K" is warmer, richer, truer than anything she has done before. Illustrated by Charles E. Chambers. $1.35 net, postpaid. Houghton, Mifflin Company.

"The Finding of Jasper Holt."—By Grace L. H. Lutz. Illustrations in color by E. B. Bayne. $1.25 net. J. B. Lippincott Company, publishers, Philadelphia. The novel is undoubtedly one of the most powerful forces for the better in the modern literature, the moving pictures, the newspapers, and, some say, though most deny it, the church itself. Mrs. Lutz, in "Jasper Holt," gives us a novel that is a tremendous force for good. We read of how Jean Grayson, a delightful, beautiful, quiet, but heroic girl, faces death in a train wreck, starvation in a desert, and finally freedom from family and friends. Why, pray? Because she believes, and has the courage of her beliefs, in the decency and manliness of the man who saved her life, the so-called "western desperado," the hero—Jasper Holt. It takes the agency of wagon loads of roses, grown by Holt for his lady, a tremendous horse race, and a cruel holdup to bring this man and Jean Grayson to a realization of their devotion—but when such realization does come, the reader is happy.

Has Ten Recitation Rooms.
The Oakland High school was erected in 1911. It has ten recitation rooms. It is equipped with splendid facilities for the teaching of domestic science, art and agriculture. New material will be added to the teaching of physics will be provided on the opening of the school term. The school has a well chosen library consisting of 3,500 volumes. Steps will be taken to provide an assembly room large enough for the assembling of the whole school. The enrollment last year was 47. This year an increase of at least 20 per cent. in the enrollment of the school is expected.

Announcements of the courses have been printed on the back of which the pupil will find statistics given to prove that a high school education pays in dollars and cents. These statistics, which are assembled by the United States census reports show the average earning power of a man twenty-five years of age as follows: The one who withdrew from school upon the completion of the eighth grade work receives $15 per week, but the one who remained in school about 18 and completed the four years of high school work, receives $30 per week.

It pays also in social and business standing, in increased service to humanity, and in a broader vision both of the present and future," said Professor McGarrah last night.

FILE FOR 'NUT' LETTERS

Secretary of State Botkin Has "Buggy" Correspondence.

A file for "nut" letters—this is a part of the equipment in the secretary of state's office here, and one of the reasons "why it isn't such a dull office after all," Secretary Botkin explained today.

Secretary Botkin displayed a file containing possibly a half hundred letters from persons who were a "wax bit buggy." "Usually we had hear from them in the state asylum," Botkin said.

Botkin receives other interesting letters besides the "nutty" kind. One young man, married three years ago, low in the state asylum, and wrote the secretary for a copy.

"Why he didn't go to the probate judge who married him, for a copy, is more than I know," Botkin said.

IF PEOPLE ONLY KNEW

"If people only knew," says Mr. V. B. McMillin, of 319 Quincy, "they surely would not suffer longer with kidney troubles and constipation, but instead would try Hazlett's Wild Cherry Compound. I certainly am surprised that a medicine could give the wonderful relief for one's kidneys it has given me. For my constipation it has been perfect." Hazlett's Wild Cherry is not an experiment, but a compound of crude herbs in harmony with nature and long known for their virtue. Why take chances with your health with minerals and so-called cures. Hazlett's Wild Cherry Compound will rid the system of the congestions that are now causing distress. Try a few doses of the crude herbs and note the marked change. Be sensible—Investigate.

A. C. Klingaman & Co., of 130 East Sixth St., will take pleasure in explaining this compound of true value to the suffering and will sell for a few days to advertise three packages for $1.00. Same will be mailed to you—Adv.

I have saved a great many of the crude herbs and note the marked change. Be sensible—Investigate."

Miss Burke's beauty has won her the name of California's most beautiful daughter and she had enjoyed popularity in the social life of New York, Paris and London. Several years ago she was reported to be affianced to Prince Ludovico Pignatelli d'Aragona, a Spaniard and the kinsman of King Alfonso. This engagement was brought to an abrupt end, however, several months after the first mention of it.

In 1912 Miss Burke was again announced to be engaged to Prince Ferdinand de Bourbon, a cousin of the Spanish ruler. The date for the wedding had been arranged, but the death by his own hand of the Prince d'Aragona deferred the wedding and after a long postponement Miss Burke announced that she had changed her mind and would never marry.

London Cottenham, first of her engagements was to Lady Rose Nevill in 1898. Three years ago London society was startled to hear of the death of Lady Cottenham,
